

Rachel Schneider Bio

Rachel Schneider currently works as a consultant with the 21(d) Safety and Health Consultation Program at Georgia Tech. As a safety specialist, she provides on-site assessments to identify physical safety hazards and evaluate technical programs for manufacturing facilities in the state of Georgia. As an instructor for Georgia Tech's OSHA Training Institute Educational Center, Ms. Schneider teaches in-person and virtual training courses on various safety topics. Ms. Schneider also assists companies in the state of Georgia with environmental compliance through the Georgia Environmental Compliance Assistance Program (GECAP). Ms. Schneider earned her Master of Science in Public Health from Tulane University's School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine.